2023-24 COMMUNITY IMPACT REPORT

UFC and the UFC Foundation are dedicated to making a positive and sustainable impact by advocating for youth, public service, arts and education, equality, and those who fight to overcome critical and life-threatening illnesses.

Through our corporate social responsibility program, #UFCInTheCommunity, we strategically collaborate with partners, sponsors, and athletes to develop charitable programs to make a positive impact on the communities where we host events and athletes reside.

As we look back on 2023 and 2024, we'd like to highlight some of our activations that could not have been achieved without the tireless help of our partners, sponsors, and athletes.

Thank you for being a part of our charitable program and helping to make a positive impact on the community.

UFC-BRANDED YOUTH FITNESS CENTER IN PARTNERSHIP WITH THE BOYS & GIRLS CLUB OF HAWAII

UFC and former two-time UFC featherweight champion Max Holloway partnered with the Boys & Girls Club of Hawaii to open the Max Holloway Fitness Center, which is the first UFC-branded gym in any Boys & Girls Club worldwide. Holloway, a native of the area with deep ties to the Clubhouse and community, played a key role in bringing the fitness center to life with his generous initial $60,000 donation in partnership with UFC.

"I'm blessed to have the opportunity to give back to my community in a big way in opening the first-ever UFC fitness gym in any Boys & Girls Club anywhere," said Max Holloway, former UFC featherweight champion and Health and Fitness Ambassador for the Boys & Girls Club of Hawaii. "I'm excited and being the Health and Fitness Ambassador is a huge deal. Every time I have the opportunity to coach, I love it, and to watch someone grow is amazing."

At the event, BGCH officially honored Holloway as the organization's first Health and Fitness Ambassador. In this capacity, Holloway will inspire and motivate 16,000 youth across nine Clubhouses through his passion for physical fitness and mental resilience, as well as raise awareness and funds for BGCH. The collaboration aims to instill discipline, self-confidence, and healthy living by utilizing his journey as an example of perseverance.

The grand opening featured Holloway leading BGCH members through a fitness lesson in the brand-new facility, where they learned a series of self-defense drills, practicing hand-eye coordination and punching on the new bags, and the importance of team building.

The state-of-the-art space is equipped with nine punching bags and open space for exercises, promoting well-being and healthy lifestyle choices among the youth. Currently, the Waianae Clubhouse serves hundreds of keiki from the area, providing them with a safe and nurturing environment to learn, grow, and thrive.
